Jeremiah Tower: The Early Years

Jeremiah Tower cooking in his early days.

Born into a family of restaurateurs, Jeremiah Tower's culinary destiny was perhaps written in the stars. His childhood was marked by the vibrant flavors and aromas that permeated his family's kitchen. At a tender age, he began experimenting with different ingredients, nurturing a passion that would later blossom into a lifelong career.

Tower's early experiences working in various restaurants honed his skills and sparked his imagination. He quickly realized that cooking was not merely a means of sustenance but a form of art and expression.

Stars Restaurant: A Culinary Revolution

Stars Restaurant, where Jeremiah Tower made his mark.

In 1970, Jeremiah Tower embarked on a transformative chapter in his career when he opened Stars Restaurant in San Francisco. Stars quickly became a culinary landmark, renowned for its innovative menu that pushed the boundaries of American cuisine.

Tower's approach to cooking was characterized by his fearless experimentation, inspired by flavors and techniques from around the globe. He sought to create dishes that were both visually stunning and palate-pleasing, combining classic techniques with modern flair.

At Stars, Tower created some of his most iconic dishes, including the legendary "Eggplant Lasagna" and the "Chocolate Marquis." His innovative creations not only delighted diners but also inspired a generation of chefs, cementing his legacy as a true culinary innovator.

Favorite Memories from Jeremiah Tower

The Creation of "Eggplant Lasagna"

One of my fondest memories from Stars is the creation of our signature dish, the "Eggplant Lasagna." I was inspired by the classic Italian dish, but I wanted to give it a unique twist. We replaced the traditional pasta layers with thinly sliced eggplant and added a rich and flavorful tomato sauce. The result was a dish that was both familiar and innovative, and it quickly became a favorite among our guests.

The Visit of Julia Child

It was an honor to have the legendary Julia Child visit Stars. She had heard about our innovative cuisine and was eager to experience it firsthand. We prepared a special tasting menu featuring some of our most popular dishes, and she was delighted with every course. Her enthusiasm and encouragement were incredibly motivating, and I will always cherish that memory.
