Breslin's book is a sweeping history of the 20th century, from the rise of fascism to the fall of communism. He argues that the good guys—the people who fought for democracy, freedom, and equality—ultimately prevailed over the bad guys.

Breslin's book is a powerful and inspiring story. It is a reminder that even in the darkest of times, the good guys can win.

The Rise of Fascism

The 20th century began with the rise of fascism. Fascism is a political ideology that glorifies the state and the nation. Fascists believe that the individual is subordinate to the state and that the state should have absolute power.

Fascism first took hold in Italy in the 1920s. The Italian Fascist Party was led by Benito Mussolini, who promised to make Italy a great power again. Mussolini's regime was marked by violence and repression. He suppressed political dissent and sent his opponents to prison or into exile.

Fascism also took hold in Germany in the 1930s. The German Nazi Party was led by Adolf Hitler, who promised to restore Germany to its former glory. Hitler's regime was even more violent and repressive than Mussolini's. He persecuted Jews, Roma, and other minorities. He also started World War II, which resulted in the deaths of millions of people.

The Fall of Communism

The 20th century also saw the rise and fall of communism. Communism is a political ideology that seeks to create a classless, stateless society. Communists believe that the means of production should be owned in common.

Communism first took hold in Russia in 1917. The Russian Revolution was led by Vladimir Lenin, who promised to create a new world order. Lenin's regime was marked by violence and repression. He suppressed political dissent and sent his opponents to prison or into exile.

Communism also took hold in China in 1949. The Chinese Communist Party was led by Mao Zedong, who promised to create a new China. Mao's regime was even more violent and repressive than Lenin's. He persecuted intellectuals, landlords, and other "class enemies." He also started the Great Leap Forward, which resulted in the deaths of millions of people.

The Soviet Union and China were the two most powerful communist countries in the world. They competed with each other for influence and resources. This competition led to the Cold War, which lasted from 1947 to 1991.

The Cold War ended with the collapse of the Soviet Union in 1991. The Soviet Union was unable to keep up with the United States economically and militarily. The Soviet economy collapsed, and the Soviet Union dissolved into 15 independent republics.

The fall of the Soviet Union was a major victory for the good guys. It marked the end of communism as a major world power.

The Good Guys Win

The 20th century was a tumultuous time. It was a time of great suffering, but it was also a time of great progress. The good guys ultimately prevailed over the bad guys.

The good guys fought for democracy, freedom, and equality. They fought against fascism and communism. They fought for the rights of all people, regardless of race, religion, or gender.

The good guys won the world because they were determined to make it a better place. They never gave up hope, even when things seemed darkest. They knew that the future belonged to them.

The good guys won the world, but their work is not yet done. There are still many challenges that face us today. We must continue to fight for democracy, freedom, and equality. We must continue to fight for the rights of all people.

We must never forget the lessons of the 20th century. We must never let the bad guys win.
