Early Life and Culinary Inspirations

Born in Albany, Georgia, Paula Deen's culinary journey began at a tender age. Growing up in a humble home, she was deeply influenced by her grandmother's traditional Southern cooking. The aromas of fried chicken, cornbread, and sweet tea filled her childhood, instilling in her a lifelong passion for the South's culinary heritage.

As a young woman, Paula worked as a bank secretary before discovering her true calling in the food industry. In 1996, she opened her first restaurant, The Lady & Sons, in Savannah, Georgia. The restaurant quickly gained a reputation for its authentic Southern dishes, warm hospitality, and Paula's engaging personality.
