

The Bone and Sinew of the Compact Osgoode Society for Canadian Legal History

The Osgoode Society for Canadian Legal History is a learned society dedicated to the study of the history of law in Canada. Founded in 1966, the Society is named after William Osgoode, the first Chief Justice of Upper Canada. The Society's membership includes lawyers, historians, judges, and other scholars from across Canada and around the world.

The Society's mission is to promote the study of Canadian legal history through research, publication, and education. The Society publishes the annual journal Osgoode Hall Law Journal, which features articles on all aspects of Canadian legal history. The Society also hosts an annual conference, which brings together scholars from around the world to present their research on Canadian legal history.
