Stories from The Dad Report

The Dad Report features stories from all walks of life, exploring the unique bond between fathers and sons and the role that baseball plays in their lives. Here are a few excerpts from some of the stories:

“My father was my first baseball coach. He taught me everything I know about the game. We would spend hours in the backyard, hitting balls and fielding grounders. Baseball was our way of bonding and spending time together. I'll never forget the day he took me to my first Major League Baseball game. It was an experience that I will cherish forever.”

John, age 35”

“I'm not a big baseball fan, but I love watching my son play. He's so passionate about the game, and it's great to see him having fun. Baseball has taught him a lot about teamwork and perseverance. It's also helped him to make new friends. I'm so proud of the young man he's become.”

Mary, age 40”

“My father and I have always been close, but our bond has grown even stronger since we started playing baseball together. We play on a men's league team, and we have a blast. We get to spend time together, talk about baseball, and compete against each other. It's a great way to stay connected and bond with my dad.”

David, age 30”
