How does the work?

The works by providing search engines with information about your website. This information includes things like your website's title, description, keywords, and content. Search engines use this information to determine how relevant your website is to a user's search query.

How to use the

To use the, you need to edit your website's HTML code. You can do this by using a text editor or a content management system (CMS).

Once you have opened your website's HTML code, you need to add a meta tag to the head section of the code. The meta tag should look like this:

The content attribute of the meta tag is where you will add your website's description. The description should be brief and concise, and it should accurately describe your website's content.

In addition to the description meta tag, you should also add a keywords meta tag to the head section of your website's HTML code. The keywords meta tag should look like this:

The content attribute of the keywords meta tag is where you will add a list of keywords that are relevant to your website's content. The keywords should be separated by commas.
